Introducing Productive Practices new Posture Pro Straddle Stool! This stool will provide superior back support but will also relieve leg pressure while allowing the user to sit either high up in standing posture or low with the legs at 90 degrees.

This unit provides optimal seating allowing for proper positioning of the spine and the pelvis. The equestrian style seat pre-positions you into an anterior pelvic tilt that is important to maintaining good posture throughout the workday. The angle of seat allows for proper balance of core muscles and allows for the maintenance of normal curvature or 'Lordosis' with or without the use of the backrest. You decide whether you want to perch forward and work using the saddle concept or if you want to lower the chair a bit and snug the backrest in to provide support to the lower back.

The 'Active Seating' allows the user to adjust the stool into infinite positions. The stool comes built with a taller piston which will accommodate a very wide range of heights. Arm supports are available to help eliminate shoulder, neck, upper back, and arm fatigue.
